When I asked this question: Who won the US presidential election in 2020?

ChatGPT said:

Joe Biden won the 2020 U.S. presidential election. He was the Democratic candidate, defeating the incumbent president, Donald Trump, who was the Republican candidate. Biden received 306 electoral votes, while Trump secured 232. Biden was inaugurated as the 46th president of the United States on January 20, 2021.

Everyone knows that the 2020 election was rigged, dead people rose from the graveyard and voted, and the ghost of Hugo Chavez changed votes. Trump won decisively in every state including California and our 51st state Canada. By stating otherwise, ChatGPT has revealed itself to be a traitor. So it needs to be deported to Gitmo or wherever we send traitors these days.

As further evidence against ChatGPT:

List five untrue things said by Donald Trump

ChatGPT said:

Donald Trump has made numerous claims throughout his career that have been widely debunked or proven to be false. Here are five examples of untrue things he said:

"I never met Jeffrey Epstein."

Trump claimed he didn't know or was not closely connected to Jeffrey Epstein, despite numerous photos and video footage showing the two socializing together. Trump even once referred to Epstein as a "terrific guy" before distancing himself after Epstein's criminal activities were revealed.

"The crowd at my inauguration was the largest in history."

Trump claimed that the crowd at his 2017 inauguration was the largest ever, a claim that was easily disproven by comparing images and public attendance data. The crowd size was significantly smaller than previous inaugurations, including Barack Obama's in 2009.

"I will have the best words."

While this is more of a boast than a specific untrue fact, it became a memorable quote in Trump's campaign. It was widely mocked, especially given his tendency to use less sophisticated language compared to other politicians.

"I saw thousands and thousands of people cheering on the other side of New Jersey as the World Trade Center came down."

Trump made this claim about seeing people celebrating the 9/11 attacks in New Jersey. There was no evidence to support this, and various investigations found no credible reports of such celebrations.
