General Comment

Our copyright laws exist to protect business owners from those who would wish to take advantage of them, and enable creatives to enhance the entertainment industry with unique ideas that enhance the market for the better. Artificial Intelligence, in its current form, violates those sacred laws that not only protect those business owners who have a passion for their work, and enhance the market as a result, but also it will violate the consumer as well, whose trust may never be restored in the business that use AI to cut corners in an industry where your passion and creativity MUST be genuine in order to succeed.

There IS NO way to research AI to be more ethical and useful without stealing terabytes of data from those businesses, and shafting those businesses out of their product with a hallucinogenic imitation of creativity created by a machine that is ONLY DESIGNED to do exactly what it is told to do using a series of instructions that control electrical switches to do only one of two things: Close a circuit, or open it.

As an electrician in your country, I believe that your money is better spent on expanding the fiber optic network in the US to be nationwide. Your money is better spent on improving the designs of electric vehicles to allow them to last longer than 10 years. Your money is better spent on a nationwide rail system to allow your citizens to get to work without risking their lives on dangerous roads. Your money is better spent on improving the cleanliness and safety of nuclear power, allowing the US to utilize the very thing that we used to wipe two cities in Japan off the map to not only power our own nation, but our allies in Canada and Mexico as well. If you want to put America First, invest in all Americans from all walks of life to better their lives. Do not invest in AI, which will only give it the potential to make it infinitely worse.
