General Comment

Copyright laws exist for a reason, to protect people from predatory and illicit criminals from stealing works from people and profiting off of it. No exemptions, no matter who or what for, should be made to just give people or computers, access to works owned by someone.

We've already seen how abusive and out of control AI can get. How it has been misused more than it's intended purpose of helping people. It's an abusive technology that actually isn't even AI, but a string of comparisons to hopefully, maybe, say the right thing. It actually doesn't even think.

And ask yourselves this; Do we really want any more videos of Donald Trump sucking on Elon Musk's toes? Do we need to see more pictures of Donald Trump sucking on Elon Musk's toes circulating the internet on Google, Bing, any search engine on the internet? Do we want to see books made by AI on Amazon, Barnes and Nobles, or any bookstore selling multiple versions or sequels of Donald Trump sucking on Elon Musk's toes? Do we want to hear an AI generated voice of both Donald Trump and Elon Musk reading the book aloud for anyone to hear, of them discussing and going through how badly Donald Trump wants to suck on Elon Musk's toes?

Because what's to stop them at toes?

With AI having access to all those copyrighted works, it can get far worse with just the click of a button.

So NO to AI having access to copyrighted works!
