General Comment

Artificial Intelligence has a place within the world. It should benefit mankind but not take the place of mankind. Currently, entities that run and own these AI companies want to "train" their AI's on the blood, sweat and tears of artists and workers without permission. They want to steal the collective output of humanity, repackage it and spit it out to anyone who will pay them for it. They have no right to do this.

This theft of work, experience and time can only hurt Americans. Many have already lost their jobs in the art industry. Greed has prompted many companies to fire their creative departments in favor of paying for AI output which in many circumstances was based on the work of their former employees.

AI is also not a learning being "studying" content and basing new and original works of art or new creative output on any sort of observation. These AI programs take in original works and cannot output without original works.

Again, this is a matter of companies trying to take work that does not belong to them and offering no compensation for it. They throw the stolen content into an "AI Blender" and sell this output for profit. It is greedy. It is lazy. It is not American. It is wrong. If these companies want "food" to feed their machines then they should pay for the food like everyone else does- and only if this content is willingly for sale by the real creators. This rape of hard workers for profit must be stopped. It must be condemned.

Thank you.
