

PUBLIC SUBMISSION

As of: March 21, 2025
Received: March 15, 2025
Status: [REDACTED]
Tracking No. m89-v1ed-2s1d
Comments Due: March 15, 2025
Submission Type: API

Docket: NSF_FRDOC_0001

Recently Posted NSF Rules and Notices.

Comment On: NSF_FRDOC_0001-3479

Request for Information: Development of an Artificial Intelligence Action Plan

Document: NSF_FRDOC_0001-DRAFT-1738

Comment on FR Doc # 2025-02305

Submitter Information

Name: Nicholas Kole

Email:

[REDACTED]

General Comment

If The United States decides to allow, and privilege the use of unlicensed work as training data for these big AI tech firms it risks losing the very thing that makes our culture unique and profitable... If working artists are unable to contribute meaningfully and make a living there will no longer be incentive for one of our biggest exports (entertainment in all forms music, movies, games...books... ect). Generative AI is largely proving to be unprofitable and far too expensive to maintain- there is a wild, manic rush to blow ahead at enormous cost and a diminishing benefit. In the end everyone loses out if they are able to skirt the law and destroy other industries and livelihoods in the process. These big business are racing each other to the bottom, for a technology that is largely useless to most people, they put on flashy displays but in the last three years generative ai hasn't really revolutionized any business. If anything it has muddled things up for many people often making things more complicated than it needs to be by adding an automated element that doesn't work well and frustrates more than helps.

If America wants to keep its competitive edge it needs to uphold copyright so that working people can maintain their livelihoods and continue to contribute to society. Our culture of art and entertainment is dominant because of our values of freedom and individual empowerment. Don't allow these companies to pull the wool over our eyes, while they line their pockets and promise impossibilities. We deserve the rights to our work, we deserve a robust and evenhanded justice according to the rule of copyright law, we deserve to succeed as workers, creators, artists and entertainers in a nation that has always represented freedom and self reliance. Do not allow corporate greed to guide the hand of law, and steal the hard work of individuals to feed a collectivist machine future powered by an averaged-out slush derived from the theft of hard work of the best and brightest America has to offer.