General Comment

If I have to pay to use an AI model, which you do for most of them, the AI model companies should have to pay for the content they train their AI on.

However. There is absolutely no reason AI should be trained on copywritten materials. There is plenty of non-copywritten materials, such as media that has entered public domain, that they can use.

My writing, my art, my copywritten work should NEVER be used to train AI without my express written permission.
