General Comment

AI is currently a tool used by big organizations to grind up small people and use them for their own means. As an American citizen I do NOT support the current trajectory of AI development. Its use in all fields, but especially creative ones, needs to be regulated both in accordance with existing laws regarding copyright and consumer protection, as well as additional considerations for how it will negatively impact people when it hallucinates incorrect information.

If any sort of action plan is put in place, I would prefer for funding and research to be done on how to protect American citizens from having their rights violated by users of AI. This is especially true of how our data should be protected from foreign companies. Stronger data privacy laws should be put in place to protect us from being spied on by malicious actors.
