

PUBLIC SUBMISSION

As of: March 21, 2025
Received: March 15, 2025
Status: [REDACTED]
Tracking No. m8a-bos6-b3v7
Comments Due: March 15, 2025
Submission Type: API

Docket: NSF_FRDOC_0001

Recently Posted NSF Rules and Notices.

Comment On: NSF_FRDOC_0001-3479

Request for Information: Development of an Artificial Intelligence Action Plan

Document: NSF_FRDOC_0001-DRAFT-1863

Comment on FR Doc # 2025-02305

Submitter Information

Name: Anonymous Anonymous

General Comment

Every single person I've ever talked to, both offline and online, hates the current AI trends with every bone in their body. Most people who see AI used in marketing and business assume that the company who used it is either a scam company, or too lazy to put effort into marketing, so why should their product be trusted? The blatant disregard of copyright by AI companies has already been a destruction on multiple creative industries, losing talented people their jobs and making them starve. AI has even been used to tarnish dead people's legacies, like for example in the case of Kim Jung Gi, who died of a heart attack in 2022 and in less than 24 hours had an AI model made of his artwork.

That's not even getting into the disgusting dehumanization done by these AI companies. David Holz, CEO of Midjourney, has been caught on record referring to the artists his company stole from as "datasets" and "styles". He has gone as far as to gloat that all you have to do is feign ignorance on where art comes from, and you won't be caught on copyright. Sam Altman, CEO of OpenAI, has even admitted that development of AI could lead to human extinction, stating, "Mitigating the risk of extinction from A.I. should be a global priority alongside other societal-scale risks such as pandemics and nuclear war," in a 2023 statement, signed by multiple other tech leaders including Elon Musk himself. Funny now that in 2025, OpenAI is the lead company pushing for destruction of our copyright systems, with Elon Musk at the helm of "government deregulation", an action that has lead to a bird flu epidemic and tensions rising around the world.

Is this the America we want to be? One that prides itself on self-destruction and stealing away human creativity? It certainly isn't the America most Americans want, and it's high time the government actually starts listening to their people.