General Comment

Commenting would not seem to matter given the level of ignorance it takes to even propose this. Out of every hubristic decision made by this administration, this is the most dire, and is certain to lead to ruin when the private sector is granted license to run amok by the federal government. We have imposed limitations on research for a reason, and people who do not understand why those limitations are necessary do not have the moral right to remove them. Many would compare this to an opening of Pandora's box, but with how watered down this metaphor has become it would be more apt to compare this order to the OceanGate submarine.
