General Comment

I am not glad to see that the government is wanting to use copyright material to train Artificial Intelligence which infringes on the publishers and authors of this country that Pay the patent office for their work to be protected under current law.

If this goes into affect what would the incentives for people to copyright their works? What does it benefit if AI is there to learn from it and spit out a version that is garbage? Why would anyone buy it? What incentives does the consumer have to go with this product over tradition?

The imagined profits you visualize are short term and will not last more than three years at best. The average American and the world do not agree with your approach of poaching material from publishers and it's creators and currently it is theft.

I'm happy to see that this administration wants no one to have to pay for another trademark or copyright again which takes away revenue from the federal government which is a way President Trump promised to find.

I am happy to see that this administration believes in pro censorship of the American people now when before everyone was saying that it was the previous administration that did that.

Good to see that the building of this infrastructure is what our tax dollars are paying for instead of where it needs to go such as tonight education or safety or the boarder.

These EO will not benefit the American people at all.
