General Comment

The term "AI" is being thrown around like candy as the hot new piece of technology everyone wants in on. That said, generative AI is harmful to the populace. It harms jobs in all creative fields with rippling effects elsewhere. There are more and more stories appearing where people are wrongfully accused of utilizing AI for writing or drawing. It creates an environment of a witch hunt- one which may cause devastating effects to the digital era. We cannot close Pandora's box but we can begin to create a safety net via regulations to prevent further damage.

And for those unconcerned because "it only effects artists" then do a Google search and see how much information comes up incorrect or influenced otherwise by AI. Our mere ability to locate information is at risk and that will harm us. It is already causing trouble in the school system.
