General Comment

There is no need for companies to scrape material they don't own to train AI. They can easily pay people to let them train AI off their content. This blatant dismissal of copyright and personal ownership has been going on for too long and endangers the entire creative spirit of our country. People deserve the right to protect their IP. Not to mention that ignoring copyright wholesale means AI will be able scrape from other AI programs, creating a cannibalizing situation.

The need to match China's innovations does not justify ignoring copyright and allowing AI companies to steal from writers and artists and even everyday people's personal discussions/images at will. It is extremely invasive and determinantal to people's social wellbeing.
