General Comment

Please do not allow copy written material to be used within training data. These companies are extracting huge amounts of value from assets and intellectual property that they did not create or ask permission to use. The copy written work of tens of thousands of artists, authors, musicians and actors are being used by major corporations like Microsoft and Meta to directly compete with those creators in the same market place. Giving the option to "Opt Out" is not a viable solution. Much of this copy written work is taken from social media sites where users are frequently posting the creations of others. The actual creators have no control of other users and what they post. The laws of copy write need to be upheld. This is not fair use. If a company would like to use the assets of another company or creator as part of their commercial product, they need to seek permission directly from the rights holder and provide compensation, as the law requires.
