General Comment

I'm an illustrator and I've been doing a lot of contract work for over 20 years. I unfortunately have lost a lot of work because of generative AI, and a lot of my work has been plagiarized and stolen. I can't pay my bills anymore and have had to look for other means of employment, which has been incredibly difficult with my medical conditions.

Being an individual who has honed their craft and skills for years in one area of artisan work, only to have those opportunities stripped because of the greed of men, is an incredibly difficult thing to recover from. Imagine you've spent your entire life creating a business, only to have that business stripped from you and all your hard work stolen, having to rebuild your life and start over from the ground up after 20 years of hard labor. Put yourself in that position. Imagine you lost everything all because of a thief. It's not a good feeling.

This is what AI has done to a lot of Americans in many fields. Automation might be the future, but it's not being used responsibly, it's not being used to help people. It's being used to strip people of their livelihoods and it's being used to cheat the American people. The amount of energy these programs take to run is obscene, the servers pulling from the grid, working our energy sources overtime, and it's not only hurting the people but killing our planet too. Killing the world we live in. Poisoning our air, our water, our land.

There is no positives to come from a future like this. If it was used for medical research to help people that would be one thing, but it's being used to rob and cheat, and it's going to kill us all in the end.

Think of our future.

One rich bastard can buy your vote, but let me tell you this, when our world is dying, you can't eat money.
