General Comment

Artificial intelligence is built on the principle of stealing other's creative works and meshing them into one giant plagiarized project. I will not stand for this breach on creative works and I ask you kindly to reconsider your decisions. There is no heart, nor soul in the idea of theft. After all, the thief's goal is to kill and destroy, is it not? A.I. is said thief in this case. It's killing the creativity humanity once birthed since its inception. When everything becomes computer-generated, nothing will have human thought or creativity anymore. It will all be the same.
