General Comment

As a creative myself, I absolutely disagree with allowing AI to just be able to bypass copyright to learn off of anything. People who have that creativity are greatly impacted by the recent rise of AI. Because what we have spent our lives learning to do and create what we're passionate about, can be soulless recreated at the push of a button. And then what are we to do? Just twiddle our thumbs and accept obsolescence? No. We stand to fight against it. To fight against our creations being taken without our consent, so that a learning algorithm can try and again to make a hand with the proper amount of fingers. So that it can learn to replace us. If you don't want labor workers being "replaced" then why are the creative any different? We deserve to have our work treated just the same. Do not pass this plan.
