General Comment

I've worked in writing and game development for the last ten years. My livelihood depends on the creative works that I have poured countless hours into. It is -my- work, and there is no reason that these big, billion-dollar companies should NOT have any access to use my work in ways that I do not condone. It threatens my way of life just to give corporations more wealth than they need. It's beyond ridiculous this is something people should even have to voice their opinions against.
