General Comment

AI is not only incapable of understanding context, but will provide information that is not only incorrect, but was “hallucinated” by the AI. No human expert would be allowed to continue in their field if they were consistently and blatantly wrong one out of every ten times they spoke- and that’s the accuracy of the “better” AI models.

Most are around 50%- practically a flip of the coin on whether or not you get accurate results.

And yet many search engine services are using these poorly performing glorified algorithms to keep people on their site for longer, instead of giving them the link to the sites that actually provide what they’re looking for.

Indeed, since the introduction of “AI overviews” on Google, site traffic has crashed near universally, negatively affecting the livelihood of hundreds while large companies thrive at their expense.

Generative AI is easily the worst at this- how are people to create and share their creations when they can be snatched out of their hands by greedy corporations to be mangled and mashed into heinous abominations no one actually wants?

The only people that benefit from this technology are those who deceive and take advantage of others for their own gain.

The scammers using GenAI imagery to present products that don’t exist, the manipulative AI chat sites taking advantage of the lonely and desperate with false companions, the predators who exploit others by creating revenge porn or simulating CSAM, censors manipulating narratives by autoflagging the opposing side , or flooding the search results with AI generated articles in their favor, the propagandists fomenting conflict and hatred over events that never even occurred- these are the things AI is “good” for.

Why in God’s name would you ever want more of that?
