General Comment

Many current practices of gathering the vast amount of data for training AI are unethical, deceptive, and violations of intellectual property and privacy rights. I am a strong advocate for transparency on datasets used for training AI, as well as protections for personal privacy.

Also I am growingly concerned about tech companies pushing underdeveloped and undertested AI programs with a "move fast and break things" mentality into sectors that require a lot more vigilance, such as healthcare, and companies are increasingly pressured to utilize these frankly dangerous technologies.
