General Comment

The use of AI has not been in benefit of a democratic republic. It's in use of a totalitarian government that wishes to oppress its people of free thinking and expression. It puts power into the hands of a tiny island of people who does not consider those that holds it up. As of now, we are seeing ripples of the detriment AI is causing as the people are too reliant on a tool that errs and provides misinformation that has resulted in fatal errors; to both the common individual and those that hold economic powers.

The individuals who propose AI as an economic tool do not provide real tangible worth, only theoretical solutions to problems that they create. AI has not been shown as profitable or as efficient as previously proposed.

AI now takes data, regardless of accuracy, and spits out a jumbled mess of misinformation. Much like a child skimming through a book and throwing random unrelated out of context details thinking it would provide a satisfactory answer.

AI has also been used to commit intellectual property theft.

Scattered across YouTube, Google Images, Amazon, and other sites where individuals can view and/or purchase media (books, videos, music, etc), there are AI creations using intellectual property of artists works and used as their own without proper compensation. Users train the data on works without permission from the owners and its put onto market. Often resulting in poorly made products made for cheap. It's anti-consumer tool.

AI as of now is a detriment to society and capitalism. It takes money out of the hands of the people and spits out junk that the masses are expected to pay for in money and blood.
