General Comment

The technology described as "artificial intelligence" is a house of cards. All it does is steal from the people with actual talent and force it into a soulless machine designed to amalgamate actual creative works and replace jobs designed for real people, with the additional downside in that it chews through valuable money and resources like water and electricity. The economy is currently in shambles and an EO of this magnitude will cause irreparable harm towards both the people this negatively affects and all creative markets themselves.
