General Comment

As an American citizen I feel that OpenAI is going to do more harm than good. These companies will blatantly steal copyrighted IPs and spread false and sometimes actively dangerous misinformation to the general public. Those who don't take the time to learn the difference between AI generated content and real human output will be more at risk to scams than ever before. Fake AI job listings already make job hunting a nightmare for the average person and this will only exacerbate the issue to the point that any job search function on any website will become unusable. There is no benefit to these AI bots that do things we already can do ourselves, but with technology and costs that far exceed just simply letting a human do their job.
