General Comment

Lets not bail out the companies that already stole copyrighted content. Who are now in litigation regarding their misdeeds. If they get to mine other creators work effort and property for free, that is the equivalent of theft. You don't get to walk into a bakery and steal al the produce and called it "fair use". You don't steal a factory's steel beams, and call it fair use. This is a direct attack on an individuals right to property and the right to earn a living through the fruits of their labor.

This is shamefully greedy by these mega corporation. And government would be selling out the people they are supposed to protect and represent.
