General Comment

The idea of skipping Americans's rights to consent to having anything of theirs used to train AI is an absolute disgrace to everything this country stands for. The basic dignity of publicly existing being scraped to forge their soulless replacement, whether in life, art, or career represents everything wrong with the current trajectory of our nation.

Any and all content used to train AI must be, as an aspect of law, accompanied by publicly accountable, legally verifiable consent from that data's original creator and subject(s), and any AI that exists without the full, verifiable consent of every human being whose work, words, or very being were utilized in its creation and evolution should not be allowed to exist in our country, or at all.
