General Comment

AI can be a tool for change, but is also destructive in its methods. By bypassing regulations completely, it opens an avenue for creatives to be exploited by companies and reduce the quality of “dominance” America may have currently. AI should follow an ethical approach as the rest of the world and copyrighted works have to as well, this is not a play for dominance or technological innovation, but a blatant move for trying to increase the revenue stream of companies that are facing pushback after their magic AI failed consumers.

If you want America to dominate, value quality over quantity, put the people and creatives first.
