General Comment

OpenAI should not be protected or immune to the legal processes of Copyright, integrating OpenAI and the ability to steal without repercussions is not healthy for creatives or any other future process. The American people struggle enough to live and create, making it so they are always under threat regardless of copyright laws would dissuade people from creating things even more than they are today. If we do not draw the line here, AI will take jobs, and more the further we let it know that it can just take from real people without repercussions.
