General Comment

AI has been proven to cost vast sums of money more than it is generating for any country, company, or individual, not to mention the insane toll it is taking on our energy consumption. Every piece of work scraped by AI is owned by an individual, company, or otherwise. There is no ethical or moral grounds to allow AI free reign on Copyright material. Do you think Disney will stand for their mascots to be used in any way an AI generator feels like? What about Walmart having their likeness or materials used in the same manner? What about when used for nefarious reasons? Or perhaps promotional material of a politician used for illegal content generation? Will you allow AI companies to begin creating, finding, and distributing Child Sex Acts material? Because that's what this will cause. Nothing an AI company wants to happen is for the benefit of anyone but the person who owns the name to be free from all repercussions their company does. We must hold these people accountable for the theft they willingly, knowingly, and fervently pursue.
