General Comment

As an artist and author who depends on copyright in order to make a living from my work, I am absolutely against the training of generative AI programs and their dependence on data that they stole with zero compensation. Allowing tech companies unfettered access to our copyrighted creative works will destroy huge subsets of the economy. Who will own anything? Why are we fine throwing working artists into the woodchipper so a few big companies can get richer? America's creative industries depend on HUMANS; depend on American citizens creating art and books and movies. If we can't live on our work, we won't create it, and the whole world will suffer.

Protect copyright. Protect artists. Protect authors. If I can't steal from a corporation, a corporations shouldn't get to steal from me.
