General Comment

While i am personally not an artist, i find giving AI any sort of ability to grow without regulation for thef, and infact giving it immunity from such a thing is not only reprehensible, its also just plain stupid. it kills the enviroment, floods sites with misinformation, and for those of you voting on this that care about money, does not generate any revenue period. its a never ending sinkhole that will continue to swallow all it can until there's nothing left but itself. it will call for the murder of government officials and allies of the USA because it was fed a single comment that grew and festered on other stolen material as just a minor thing that could happen. one of the more important parts however, is that it will kill the culture of America without much resistance. The culture of a nation is made in part by the art that its people create. from paintings, to animation, to music, the diversity and creativity of people come together to make what the rest of the world sees in a nations culture. and AI will destroy all of it without missing a beat. It does not create new culture, it kills the old and wears its skin. The rest of the world will look at an America using nothing but AI to create "new" things, and it will laugh. It will mock us and demean us. AI is not infite, it will run out. but human creativity and inspiration will never die.
