General Comment

Generative AI models, such as OpenAI, ChatGPT, Midjourney, FLUX.1, etc, should not be given free rein to utilize and work off of copywritten materials without the copyright holder's consent, as it'd not only affect the artists and writers of the original sources, but it'd also potentially affect the economy as a whole.

I do not see AI holding a place in the future of the United States. AI not only steals from my livelihood as an American creator, but it'll also profit from the blatant theft it commits. AI is overhyped and is fleecing the eyes of the American public.

Do not give these generative AI companies full permission to steal from artists, both big and small.
