General Comment

This is exceptionally unethical. Throwing ownership of creative works under the bus is only a domino in the set. What do you think would happen next? It's a slippery slope all the way down. Any GenAI can just take whatever they want and add it to the pile, creating this abomination of human intelligence. It's like putting all the colours together and it making brown. You can't just take pieces of art, literature, music, etc. and mix them all together. People put their souls into these pieces of art, their personalities drip from the paper. You can't just take that from them. It's like stealing a parent's baby right in front of them.

This is a terrible idea.
