General Comment

To give OpenAI copyright immunity is to overrule all previous copyright submissions, claims, lawsuits, patents, and intellectual property. It is to give them permission to steal from artists, writers, filmmakers, actors, inventors, publishers, and those who have learned to harness their creativity for the greater good.

Just once in your life, forget trying to exploit the working class to make everything profitable and remember some piece of media that has touched your soul and changed your life perspective. You want to automate your thoughts? Your feelings? No, I don't think you do. The right thing to do is to ignore OpenAI's plea for copyright immunity; in fact, to deny all such leech behavior and let your own humanity reign.
