General Comment

I do not believe that artificial intelligence such as this has any place in the future of America. It takes away the jobs of artists and designers who make the backbone of culture within our society, and to simply toss that away for the sake of a bottomless pit that offers no future is not only shortsighted, but greedy and utterly evil to it's very core. If we give AI a pass to the copyright laws we have in place, then we will no longer be a society of culture and art, but instead of regurgitated ideas warped by a machine and inbred through it a thousand times. This has no place in America, and will in fact impact my votes from here on our.
