General Comment

Are y'all freaking serious? Can y'all stop letting corporations gut us for everything that makes us human? We SHOULD be protected from open AI and all its ilk, and we SHOULD have the right to force companies to respect individuals' intellectual property. This country is so goddamn embarrassing. Do something in favor of your actual living breathing citizens for once, you spineless coinpurses. Just because you've given up your souls doesn't mean you have to force the rest of us to do the same.

This technology does nothing but steal from real humans, blend it up, and deliver an unappetizing mush. It has no character, and it has been documented as making humans slower and dumber at their own cognitive tasks. This doesn't even touch the environmental harm that these technologies leave in their wake. These technologies' active and existing cons outweigh their theoretical pros by an astronomical amount. Allowing these corporations to run around unchecked will be vilified in history, if humans survive the extinction event that they're driving, that is.

Buncha f&^% moronic vampires.
