General Comment

AI that has no guardrails is ripe for abuse. It WILL kill the industry corporations routinely exploit before canabalizing itself--all for the sake of making things "easier". AI has been around for years but all this will do is make it more difficult for the world to properly find a use for it. Stealing from creators will drive down the inability to create, will drive down the willingness to create, and the only people you can blame will be yourselves. You all think AI will save us but it will be the death of every art form that makes America great--and you will be responsible for that.
