General Comment

"AI" holds no substantial promise beyond the usually-inaccurate chatbots we are seeing now. It would be profoundly unwise to inure the for-profit hypemeisters shilling this product from the consequences they should be facing for their massive and unlawful appropriation of copyrighted material en masse from contemporary culture. These unserious charlatans are actively destroying the livelihoods of the creative class, all in the name of some always-around-the-corner promise of a controllable workforce and a fungible labor class. Hard no.
