General Comment

Allowing OpenAI to use any image without permission of the IP holders is going to lead to nonstop theft and the destruction of design industries. The economy is already about to collapse and destroying another industry for the sake of the stagnating tech industry (i highly recommend watching/listening to some of Adam Conover's Factually podcast episodes on AI and how it can't even do that much at this point and people are basically lying to investors about how advanced the tech is).

Letting Open AI and other companies train their programs on any image they get is throwing copyright law out the window and I fully expect companies like Disney to bring down the hammer fighting these decisions.
