General Comment

As a creative who is heavily involved in the creative community, I feel that generative AI is a great insult to what I and many others stand for. It is unethical and exploitative to scrape the work of billions of creators without their consent for technology intended to replace them. It is the threat to the livelihood of countless Americans and has been way overhyped as the future of this country. I wish of the law to side with the working class creators and not corporate giants of big tech.
