General Comment

Allowing AI to legally steal is practically handing everyone's hard work to someone else to use without any credit, or gratitude. Corporate businesses would be able to abuse this, along with other companies. Videogame Developers, Hollywood, all of them would rather use AI despite it's major flaws in cohesion. This would hurt jobs, people making money from drawing and making art as their own business, and the artistic industry as a whole. I do not and will never support AI stealing art. It's an awful practice, enforces laziness, and brings out the negligence of doing better with practice.
