Re: National Science Foundation's Request for Information on the Development of an Artificial Intelligence (AI) Action Plan

The AI systems made by Big Tech companies like OpenAI (Microsoft) and Google threaten to destroy thousands of American small businesses with their recent demand to create special carve-outs in copyright law.

AI systems can only be produced by first training on work made by people. The work of hundreds of thousands of everyday American creators was taken and fed into these AI systems without our consent or any compensation. They ingest our work, reassemble it, and then sell it back to our clients – directly competing with us and cutting us out of the marketplace.

These Big Tech companies are asking this administration to create exceptions and loopholes to make this practice of stealing American creators' copyrighted work legal precedent. They suggest that if a machine ingests and reproduces copyrighted work, it is suddenly "fair use."

They seem to believe that anything and everything on the internet – regardless of who owns it – should be theirs for the taking. They claim that if this administration does not allow them to rewrite the law in this way, it will stifle American innovation.

Instead, it will have the opposite effect. The purpose of American copyright law is to protect the incentive to create and innovate. Giving AI organizations free rein to loot the combined efforts of artists, authors, academics, scientists, and much more null and void any use for having a copyright.

Will you allow them to scrape the work of other big companies as freely? Will Disney not be able to sue? HBO? DC Comics? Or will you protect those with the money to fight you only and let everyone else be thrown into the grinder?

AI cannot be allowed to steal. There are ethical ways of creating an AI. They simply do not want to put the money and effort into doing it that way when they can scrape the entire internet and run away with their bags of stolen content.

Please do not allow this. You will kill the creative and innovative drive of the American people, who will no longer have protections for their work, nor the right to profit from it, as the AI companies gobble it all up.
