General Comment

"Artificial Intelligence" is only a half truth - it is artificial, yes, but not intelligent. And it has absolutely NO place within reach of actual ART. EVERY single dataset for AI has been based upon STOLEN work. And now it's being proposed to offer OpenAI complete legal immunity from copyright law? After which EVERY OTHER AI thief will gleefully seize upon their own ransacking and cannibalism of the work of countless others, who will see NO profit, NO acknowledgment, and NO recourse for such an abominable decision.

To quote my late, great, ever-awesome Nana, a New Yorker through and through: "F&^% you and the horse you rode in."

AI holds NO place in any artistic forum, venue, or methodology. It is THEFT. And while thievery is currently 'en vogue' in our current administration by the robber barons masquerading as government officials, SOMEONE has to draw a line.

Draw the godsdamned line HERE.
