General Comment

Generative AI is, frankly, a net resource drain for net negative value. It serves no practical purpose except to enrich the already wealthy by stealing the labour of the people who actually have the ideas and skills to create art and cultural works.

Letting that theft continue unchecked, and providing it with legal protection, is a concession that says that Americans cannot create works of value. It is a statement to the world that we are, culturally, bankrupt- only capable of producing through the mindless and distorted replications of that which already exists. It is a declaration to the American people that their ideas and aspirations are of no value.
