General Comment

Many of my friends make their living making art, animating, and using their voices in order to get any sort of income. The last few years have shown that companies are willing to subtract genuine care and originality over mindless slop that hurts those looking for an income in the work industry. AI needs to be regulated, and allowing companies like google to use their tech to siphon through god knows how much content in order to leech off of others, and those having no say or control in it is absolutely disgusting and shouldn't be allowed.
