General Comment

This is terrible. If anyone steals from artists or uses their IP without permission, we'd call that an infringement. If IP laws can't even protect artist from that, what are we doing. Legally letting AI companies steal art is abhorrent. There has been little material benefit shown from using generative AI to make sounds and images for use in artistic endeavors. It would be bad on the those grounds alone, but the environmental impact is also staggering. We can't let someone else profit on another's labor just because they had a computer look at the image first. Please respect artists.
