General Comment

It's important to protect the rights and intellectual property of creators across the world. Creators and companies that create beloved works of art and movies should not be allowed to have their work and ideas taken by AI development without proper compensations and protections. Otherwise, what's to stop anyone from scraping data from Disney movies, using it to create their own Mickey Mouse content, and selling it without Disney's permission or recompense? What's to keep someone from using AI to generate their own procedurally generated Marvel comics, whether Marvel wants them to or not, if those protections for creators don't exist? What's to protect my son from having his character and story and comic ideas taken and passed through a LLM and resold by other people?

Please consider the important of protecting American creators, American companies, American rights, and American intellectual property.
