General Comment

Large company lawyers and lobbyists will argue in favor of expanding the net of AI, yet they are wrong. The average American will have their privacy and rights violated every second of every day by AI if AI is not kept in check. AI can be a wonderful tool to advance humanity, removing some of our burdens in the workforce. However, it is not currently being used for that purpose. It is used to plagiarize and steal art, writing, music, and intellectual property from Americans, and people all around the world, for the pure purpose of advancing a profit margin. Large tech companies are pushing for private power grids to fund massive, expensive, and global warming accelerating data centers specifically to train unintelligible AI bots. While millions of Americans see their power utilities increase in price to record highs, Large corporations are stealing their electricity to train AI slop that isn't worth the microchip they're processed by.
