General Comment

It is a horrible idea to give OpenAI and other such glorified content scrapers free reign to steal copyrighted material to train their useless AI programs. It does not fall under fair use and it is a gross overreach of copyright law and legal precedent if this change were to take place. It also threatens the livelihoods of people across vast swathes of the economy, which is already teetering due to the Trump administration's prior horrendous economic policy and personnel decisions. Reconsider this.
