General Comment

To say that all art really exists to feed a machine of unskilled labor run by a bunch of brainless tech jockies who have never so much as picked up a paintbrush in their lives is heresy. Do copyright laws mean nothing to you? Or do they only mean something to you when it's a billion dollar corporation like Walt Disney who has the power and the money to fight back breathing down your sorry necks? Do people having their likenesses used without their consent to manufacture cheap porn mean nothing to you when some of the people in question are CHILDREN? Do people under NDAs in regards to their projects while the companies that make their programs are free to inject AI that nobody asked for into with zero repercussions are able to make their work public mean nothing do you? Does the right to the pursuit of happiness even for people who do unappreciated labor like the arts mean nothing to you? Obviously the answer to all these questions is that it DOES mean nothing to you, but to destroy rights and liberties outlined in the constitution of the Unites States, which you all have casually forgotten exists except for the amendments that allow preschools to be shot up, is not a choice that is going to go unpunished by your constituents.

This government is a f&^% farce to be bought out by corporate greed so easily, we had lessons in school growing up that specifically warned against this, and one day you all will realize this needs to change or else you will not be long for your positions. Change or fail.
