General Comment

absolutely not, under no circumstances, should theft of intellectual property be allowed on the basis of "our business model depends on it". If your business model depends on being allowed to steal from others then it's a s&^% business model and should be allowed to fail on its own lack of merits. Incidentally, if that business model depends on being fed a never-ending stream of newly-stolen content then it will fail anyway on the basis of putting the creators of that content out of jobs.
