General Comment

Why should AI companies, with the backing of billions of dollars of investment, be allowed to take the copyrighted work of individuals without monetary compensation? If consumers have to pay money to watch a movie or read a book, then why is a company exempt from paying for the same content? If one business entity must obtain permission to use a work from its copyright holder, why should an AI company be exempt? To grant them a free perpetual license to use this information is hypocritical and immoral.
